ADDENDA ET CORRIGENDA

for

Motectorum Liber I (Vol. XI)

- No. 3. Text is taken from the Gospel for Mass of the Second Sunday after Epiphany.
- ,, 4. Possibly for use during Octave of Fourth Sunday after Easter.
- ,, 5. Text is the Gospel for Mass of Tuesday after the First Sunday in Lent. The motet has the responsory form, ABCB, as in no. 7.
- ,, 6. Text is taken from the Epistle for Mass of the Third Sunday after Epiphany, using all except v. 21.
- ,, 8. The text for Transeunte Domino is a somewhat free paraphrase of the Gospel for Mass of Quinquagesima Sunday (Luke VIII: 35-43), but not a Sequence. The opening lines of this version apparently come from the Antiphon at Terce of the same Sunday.
- ,, 12. Text is freely arranged; possibly for use during Octave of Epiphany inasmuch as text includes entire Offertory text for Mass of that day. (LU 461).
- ,, 14. Source of text not known; not liturgical, so very likely an occasional piece.
- ,, 16. Motet employs the complete text of the Gospel of Mass for the Assumption of the Virgin, August 15, a major feast. (LU 1603) Possibly used as Offertory or Communion.
- ,, 18. Text is the entire Gospel for Mass of Whitsunday (John XIV: 26-28, omitting first two lines of v. 27) Inasmuch as Whitsunday is a major feast it is entirely possible that this motet had some place in one of the services for that day.
- ,, 19. This motet was undoubtedly composed as an occasional piece, possibly for devotional services. The text, which is not liturgical, seems to paraphrase Job XXX: 31.
