NOTRE-DAME AND RELATED CONDUCTUS—OPERA OMNIA

Edited and transcribed by Gordon A. Anderson

VOLUME III: 2PT CONDUCTUS IN FOUR CENTRAL SOURCES
2PT CONDUCTUS IN THREE CENTRAL SOURCES

This volume contains the most widely transmitted 2pt Notre-Dame conductus. It is significant that the large extended works with great sweeping melismata should mostly be found in four or three of the main source; this is a testimony of both their central origin and of their great popularity. In transcribing this material, I have constantly been astonished at the skill, the variety, and at times the sheer audacity of the musical creations. The pieces contained in this volume may assuredly be placed among the most significant compositions of western musical art.

Now that all the central Notre-Dame répertoire has been issued in this series, it is urged that these splendid works be frequently performed, so that they will become as familiar to the general music lover as are the standard works of the normal concert répertoire: for performer, listener as well as scholar they present an endless fund of inspiration, and they clearly demonstrate the three fundamental concepts of Gothic musical structure: vertical alignment, melody, and rhythm. Like the better known motets and the less well known organa, thirteenth-century conductus form a large interdependent group of compositions which provide a new but supplementary view of musical history; without them our understanding of thirteenth-century music would be incomplete and distorted. A careful study of the first five volumes of this series will elicit many clearly-defined stylistic features; such analysis, however, must await the publication of the final volume of this series.

I.	Austro terris influente Surgens cedit aquilo, Flatu sacro succedente Pulso mentis nubilo Fervet ignis, sed fecundans Et humanum cor emundans A letali frigore.	As the dry south wind blows o'er the lands A fire arising leaves the icy north, <sup>1</sup> And submitting to the sacred breath, <sup>2</sup> As the soul's clouds are driven off, 5 Glows hot, making fertile The human heart and cleansing it From mortal cold.
II.	Innovatur terra vetus Novo more germinans, Parit virgo, prodit fetus Eve luctum terminans, Quo complente, ius legale Coaptantur celo scale, Via patet regia.	The old land is renewed, Sprouting in a new manner, 10 The virgin gives birth, a child issues forth, Putting an end to Eve's grief, <sup>3</sup> And now fulfilled, the Law And the ladders from heaven are conjoined And the heavenly way lies open.
III.	Serpens dirus exturbatur Ad vagitum pueri, Per quem pauper liberatur Potens datur carceri, Ab erroris via flexus Patris reddit in amplexus Minor natu filius.	15 The dire serpent is driven away By a child's crying, <sup>4</sup> Through whom the poor are freed And power over prison is given; From the road of error turned 20 Into his father's embrace returns The younger son. <sup>5</sup>

1 Song of Songs IV:16 Surge, aquilo; et veni, austus; Perfla hortum mea, et fluant aromata illius. "The north wind is the Devil, who has no place to prove himself; but the south wind, that is the holy Spirit, shall possess thee, my garden (the Virgin Mary), and the aromatic spices shall flow, that is through thee shall be incarnate my only begotten son." Honorius of Autun, Sigillum beatae Mariae, Migne, Patrologia latina CLXXII, col. 508.

2 Luke I:35.

3 Genesis III:16. The expiation of Eve's sin by the Virgin is common in mediæval literature.

4 The serpent is the Devil and the crying child is Christ. The passage could be a linking of the several verses Revelation XII:2, 5 & 9.

5 Luke XV:22-27. The Prodigal Son is the younger son, namely the Gentile race, which is restored. For explication of this parable, see Studies in Music V (1971), 36-42 and Conductus A7, note 1.
